The Prez Sez

By Rick Sorak

Fellow Mopar Faithful,

OK Pay attention new meeting location this month....Perkins @ 1340 Germaintown Rd, Tues, May 6th, 6:30 to eat, 7:00 just for the meeting.

This month I'm fishing for topics....and my 1st cast pulls up a great deal on Wix oil filters....I can get Wix filters @ wholesale prices and am willing to pass on most of the savings. If ya need any filters get in touch. I will bring some filters to the meeting. BTW if ya didn't know these are one of the best oil filters made today by anyone!

#51515 $5.00 normal/standard Big or Small block 1qt oil filter, street version filters to about 20 microns, and has a bypass

#51068 $5.00 shorter/stubby version of the 51515

#51515R $7.50 Race Filter, full flow race filter--no bypass, filters to about 60 micons, very high burst pressure

#51806: $7.00 A heavy-duty 51515 with a built-in standpipe to keep the filter positively full of oil after shutdown in base-down mounting situations (slant-6, for example). These also greatly reduce oil spillage when removing a base-down filter at oil change time, see here and here for more info

#51773: $6.00 An extra-long 51515 if you want your filter to hold two quarts of oil and have the space for it

#51076: $6.00 Heavy-duty replacement filter element for factory optional taxi/fleet/police replaceable-cartridge oil filter

#51085: $5.00 "Super Shorty" Mopar oil filter, 3.79" tall (the 51068 is 4.338" tall, the 51515 and 51806 are 5.18" tall, and the 51773 is just barely shy of 7" tall)

Cast #2 Brings up Detroit Muscle Technologies, This is a little company that makes Mopar Body and heater box gasket kits, among other things. I just ordered/received a paint gasket set for my '68 Charger and the '70 Challenger I'm painting and a couple of heater box rebuild kits. The kits are very complete and available for very reasonable prices. Add some contact cement, spray paint and elbow grease and your heater box can look and act like new!

Cast #3 I'm stumped, Boy have we gotten a lot of rain, I think it's tryin to make up for last year. Hope you had a good Hemi day (4-26) and for the more modern of us there are Hemi days on 5-7, 5-28, and 6-1 too! Have a good Hemi day!

See ya at Perkins, May 6th .

Rick
